In an era of information explosion, it is vitally important to develop the ability to think critically and make rational choices. Almost everyone can publish online information. Therefore, it is of great significance for us to develop the skills of critical thinking and make rational judgment.

First of all, young people themselves should cultivate a habit of gathering credible resources via multiple channels. Normally, information on the internet is shown in selective ways. Some news is even biased. However, news from official channels and authorities is usually more objective and accurate. Thus, obtaining information through multiple channels is necessary and useful. Secondly, young people should improve their ability of judgment. To verify online materials, they must have a wealth of knowledge reserves and good independent thinking ability. They should think twice before making a judgment or decision.

In conclusion, as an increasing number of young people are joining the information era, our younger generation must acquire the skills of critical thinking to become informed and rational citizens.

Most of the Yunnan-Guizhou plateau is located in Yunnan and Guizhou provinces, with a total area of about 500,000 square kilometers and an average altitude of 2,000-4,000 meters, making it the fourth largest plateau in China. The Yunnan-Guizhou plateau is high in the west and low in the east, with many rivers, forming many deep and steep canyons. Many parts of the canyon have fertile soils, which are conducive to the growth of many kinds of crops.

The unique natural environment of the Yunnan-Guizhou plateau has created biological and cultural diversity. It is a very rich region in China in terms of forest and mineral resources, and an important area for ancient human origins. The Yunnan-Guizhou plateau is the region with the largest number of ethnic minorities in China, and each ethnic group has preserved its own colorful cultural traditions.
